More Information

Underground during the Second World War, it conveys his newly explored technique of using wax crayons to provide a 'resist' for watercolour. For a more detailed view of the tapestry please click here <https://www.henry-moore.org/collections/catalogue-raisonne/turning-the-pages>
