More Information

The Foundation is lending the marble Head of the Virgin 1922 (LH 6) to this exhibition which celebrates the RCA's 175th anniversary. Exploring the key facets of the college over three centuries, and revealing the politics and polemics behind the perennial question of how Britain should train artists and designers, the exhibition gives a fascinating insight into the world's oldest art and design school in continuous operation. Exhibits will include historic and contemporary works of art and design by leading RCA alumni and staff, past and present.
